How we work with companies – our organisational statement

International Alert has worked with companies since 1999 to help them avoid activities that risk inflaming fragile situations, and promote ways of working that contribute to stability in the countries where they invest and work. We aim for constructive engagement to influence policy for best practice.

International Alert accepts funds from companies to further its objective of understanding conflict and building peace. We will only accept funds from companies who do not have as their core business any manufacture, service or other activity that International Alert considers to be at odds with our core aims and values.
